Roads In Very Poor Condition

Continued rain during the past few weeks has left many roads impassable at urban points. Road building has been suspended and crews have concentrated on repairing bridges and culverts, as well as washouts on main roads.

Most highways in the municipality are passable at present but drivers are still falling in. Due to the number of bridges and culverts washed out it will be sometime before normal travel can be resumed.

In the town proper there are very few residences that have not been a victim of the heavy rains and most have had to use a bucket or a pump to get water out of the lower areas of their homes. At the hospital in particular a deplorable situation exists as the staff have to live in the basement of the institution, as there is no nursing residence here. Water has been plenty deep in many of the rooms in which the staff live and even frogs have started to move in. This is no exaggeration and some of the who voted against a hospital extension and proper nursing quarters should take a small trip to the local hospital and decide then if they would wish to live under the same conditions.

SATURDAY NIGHT BINGO IN THE ARMORIES

The regular fall season bingo game will be held each Saturday evening, starting at 9 p.m. in the Armories. The games are sponsored by the Lions Club and all net proceeds go to charitable organizations or to help those in need.

"Oscar" this week will be worth $25 and it should not be long before someone claims the main prize. Many other useful and beautiful prizes will be on display for winners of regular bingos.

Farewell Party For Deadrick's

The congregation and friends of the Evangelical Church met for service Sunday evening in the church parlors in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Eldon Deadrick and family, who have sold their farm and are moving to Olds. Leo Janz, the main speaker for the party, sings first bass. Other members of the Quartette are Hildor Janz, first tenor; Alvin Janz, second tenor; Corrie Enns, second bass; and Don Kroon, piano.

The Quartette derives the name "Janz" from the fact that three of its members are brothers. These men have been together as a quartet for about five years.

The Janz Quartette is one of the leading quartets in the United States and Canada. They are much sought after by religious groups for city-wide campaigns and have conducted many services throughout the United States and Canada, having appeared in rallies in such centres of population as Chicago, Washington, D. C., San Francisco and Los Angeles.

The Quartette spent seventy days in Germany under Youth for Christ International in the summer of 1951.

BERGEN NOTES

Mrs. Irene Halvorson will again be teaching the Bergen school. The Red Deer valley children are being transported to Sundre, and their former teacher, Mrs. Ruth Erickson, will teach the Inverness school.

Local people found the road to Sundre pretty long this past week, as the Big Red overflowed its banks and flooded the road, making it necessary to go east from Bergen, then north to Westwood Ho. The approach to the high bridge at Sundre was washed out and a large 'cat' was used to anchor the bridge.

Many families were forced to leave their homes in Sundre due to the swollen waters of the river and the former teacher, Mrs. Ruth Erickson, will teach the Inverness school.

POSSIBLE CONTROLS FOR LIVESTOCK PRODUCERS

Livestock producers might find themselves saddled with stifling controls and regulations reports the Western Stock Growers' Association. The marketing plan being advocated by the Interprovincial Farm Union Council, of which Alberta is a member, has all the earmarks of totalitarianism. It is loaded with compulsion, policing and force which may make livestock marketing difficult and embarrassing.

The plan presently being presented offers the following dictatorial regulations. The board would have the power to tell a producer to whom he could sell his livestock and at what price he could sell his livestock.

The board would have the power to demand that producers open their books for inspection by the board.

The board would have the right to seize and sell any livestock not marketed in accordance with its regulations and to pocket the proceeds of the sale.

The board would have the power to collect a levy on the proceeds of all livestock sales from the producer.

The board would have power to order the producer to withhold livestock from the market, even though he needed cash.

The board would have power to extend itself by regulation.

The right of the primary producer to co-operate voluntarily in the marketing of their products, at least up to the point of private sale, and if necessary to include the functions of assembly, grading and storage and even processing is not disputed but the Western Stock Growers' Association is opposed to the compulsory co-operation being advocated in this plan.

Sisters Re-United
After Many Years

Meeting for the first time in 32 years, two sisters, Mrs. T.F. Fisher, 74, Didsbury, Alta., and Mrs. Abraham Moyer, 72, of Winnipegosis, Manitoba, were reunited recently when Mrs. Moyer arrived at Didsbury for a visit.

Born in Guelph, Ontario, the sisters accompanied their parents, Alexander and Barbara Meston, west some 57 years ago. The Meston family, four sons and four daughters, settled at Winnipegosis, where Mary Isabella (Mrs. Fisher) and Jennie (Mrs. Moyer) both in their early teens, helped hew the family homestead out of an untamed wilderness, forty miles beyond the last spike. It was a gruelling task. Accustomed as they were to city life, the isolation and hardship of those pioneer days was indeed discouraging, but the Meston's were sturdy Scots with courage and tenacity of purpose. The west had called them for keeps.

After a year or two, Mary Isabella, lonely for the bright lights, returned to Winnipeg, already a thriving city, some 250 miles to the south. There she learned the dress-making trade. There she met and married Tilly Francis Fisher, the adventurous young man for whom she gladly forsook the bright lights and gaiety of Winnipeg to prove up a homestead on the vast, untamed prairies, the gentle, rolling foothills of Alberta.

Mr. and Mrs. Fisher lived for a number of years in Calgary. Before coming to Didsbury, a few years ago, they had also lived at High River, Vulcan, Nanton, Coronation and Irricana. Mr. Fisher passed away last March. Mr. and Mrs. Fisher had no family but they raised Mr. Fisher's brother's three orphaned children, Murdon of Edmonton, Robert of Didsbury and Hazel (Mrs. Angus McCune) of Irricana.

Mrs. Moyer has lived her entire life, since coming west, at Winnipegosis. In 1902 she met and married Abraham Moyer, a native son of Beamsville, Ontario, homesteading four miles from her father's home along the west shore of Lake Winnipegosis. There they farmed, successfully, and raised a family of four sons and six daughters. Mrs. Moyer usually spends the summer months on the old home farm with her son. Her husband died in 1944.

A deep yearning to see her sister again prompted, what Mrs. Moyer considered, a long trip, which was taken with mingled feelings. Not having travelled far since making the trip west many years ago, Mrs. Moyer was pleasantly surprised to find modern train comforts made the journey both easy and pleasant. After leaving Didsbury she visited Banff and Lake Louise, where she had her first glimpse of the majestic Rockies.

Yes, it was a great day for both ladies and there was much to talk about. Mrs. Moyer was reluctant to leave but she is already planning another trip which she says will include Vancouver and Victoria. She was accompanied by her daughter, Elizabeth of Winnipeg.

Notes From D.A.
HUGH McPHAIL

Truck Sanitation Pays: Common sense sanitation can do much to prevent the spread of livestock diseases by mechanical carriers, says Dr. S. W. Alford, extension animal pathologist at the University of Nebraska. In recommending that all livestock shippers thoroughly clean wash and disinfect trucks at frequent intervals. But not all types of commonly used disinfectants are equally effective against all disease organisms. As a precaution against hog cholera, vesicular and foot-and-mouth disease, Dr. Alford recommends three types of disinfectants, namely:

1. Sal soda in a 10 per cent solution made by adding 13½ ounces to a gallon of water.
2. Soda ash (sodium carbonate) in a 4 per cent solution, using a pound of material to three gallons of water.
3. Lye in a 2 per cent solution, mixing a 13½ ounce can with five gallons of water.

For anthrax and black leg, two diseases considered difficult to control, a 5 per cent solution is recommended using five 13½ ounce cans to ten gallons of water, and allowing the disinfectant to remain on the vehicle for eight hours before washing.

Lye solutions should always be handled with care, he warns, using protective goggles, rubber gloves and coveralls. Vinegar should be used to neutralize caustic lye solution accidentally spilled on the body.

HOG MARKETS REFLECT UNEASY OUTLOOK
 The downward drift in hog markets since the high seasonal peak reached in late May, appears to be due to a combination of factors.

Compared to a year ago the probable total Canadian freezer stock holdings of approximately 29½ million pounds at July 1, 1954, are lower by around eight million pounds. There are two important differences, however. Last year pork prices were somewhat lower, domestic disappearance was brisk and there was a good market for various pork items in the United States. Secondly, the prospective trend of hog marketing a year ago was downward.

This year, on the other hand, the higher level of hog and pork prices has begun to exert a cumulative braking action on domestic consumption. It is fact, coupled with some uncertainty as to the probable trend of hog marketing during July and August, has created some uneasiness. Last year hog runs declined seasonally to an average of only 71,000 in July and 66,000 in August. This year, on the basis of trends evident in May and June, runs averaging about 9,000 per week higher than last year in July and 12,000 to 15,000 higher per week in August seem quite possible. The next few weeks should tell the story.

The St. Lawrence Seaway

An article on the St. Lawrence seaway recently appeared in Maclean's magazine. The writer there said that no group in Canada stands to get more from the St. Lawrence seaway than the prairie grain farmers. He said further that Hon. Lionel Cherrier, former federal minister of transport and now head of the seaway project, estimated that the seaway will lower the cost of moving grain from Fort William to Montreal from 20 to 14 cents a bushel or a saving of 6 cents a bushel, which should mean a saving of about $20 million a year to the prairie farmer.

The article stated that about 3 million tons of grain move each year through Winnipeg and the Great Lakes. The cheapening of the Great Lakes route would shift one-third of the Vancouver volume eastward causing an annual loss to Vancouver of about $400,000 a year.

Our comment: The estimated reduction was a matter of conjecture. It depends upon the extent to which shipping from other nations is permitted to compete with Canadian Great Lakes shipping. While a drop of 6 cents a bushel would put Canadian wheat in a better competitive position with wheat of other exporting countries, there is no assurance that producers would benefit to that extent. At the present time it is cheaper to ship virtually all of Alberta's wheat via Vancouver. There is little likelihood of any development which would change that situation.

Clarke-Richardson Nuptials Held

A pretty garden wedding was recently solemnized at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. C. McCulloch when Amy June, second daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. J. Richardson, became the bride of Nelson Hermon Clarke of Hanna. Rev. Armstrong performed the ceremony under an arch of sweet peas and gladioli.

Escorted down the aisle by her father, the bride wore a gown of nylon net with satin rosettes, topped by a tiny bolero featuring a roll collar and mittens.

An illusion net veil bordered in wide scallops floated from a pearl-studded headress. She carried a nosegay of red roses.

Preceding the bride was Miss Lila McCulloch, cousin of the bride, in a floor length gown of blue net and lace. She carried a nosegay of carnations.

Although it is almost eighteen years since I first left Didsbury, the arrival of The Pioneer is still greeted with pleasure. It is the one medium through which we can maintain contact with the whole community. Even the FOR SALE ads are of interest, peculiar as that may seem, especially when we are 10,000 miles away!

New friends in far-off places make life interesting and activities rewarding, but when going is rough and routine monotonous the old home town and long tested friends are the ones that hold the greatest attraction.

HOW WOULD THIS SELL WHEAT?

"What we need most at the present time is to get wheat and the wheat crop off the front pages of the newspapers." That comes from an official of the Canadian Wheat Board.

Just now a news blackout would help, comments The Financial Post a lot of people will wonder. It might save Wheat Board officials some embarrassment, but it certainly would not market wheat. And with all due respect to the Wheat Board official quoted above, what we really need most right now is markets for wheat. The Canadian Wheat Board has sole responsibility for marketing wheat and other grains. If officials of that board really want to get wheat out of the news, then first they must get it out of the elevators. If they can't do that then they should turn the job over to somebody who can.

The wedding music was played by Don Hauser, Annie McCulloch sang "I Walk Beside You" during the signing of the register.

Forty guests attended the reception.

Through The Study Window

By REV. C. C. ARMSTRONG

By the time this appears in print I shall be south of Chicago, visiting with relatives, and viewing the wonders of the East for the first time. For myself, the Near East is Winnipeg, the Middle East (down East) is Ontario and the Far East is Montreal and beyond. Anything further on is just simply out of this world.

The fact that I am privileged to be in these remote regions, is a matter of business and pleasure, a combination of church business and holiday. My trip has been helped to a very considerable extent by a most generous and thoughtful gift by members of the congregation.

Just before I left for the east, in the midst of a pouring rain, I was unexpectedly summoned to the church. There were a goodly number already there when I arrived, and more kept arriving by boats, ferries and cars (if roads were gravelled). Bad roads, of course, made it impossible for others to come. I write of these things, because I appreciate very much indeed the "bon voyage" that was given me. They say every cloud has a silver lining, and these clouds were the large, economy size and lined, not with common silver, but with pure gold. The program, the gift of money, and the luncheon that followed all combined to make it an evening long to be remembered.

The minister, like everyone else, has some material compensation for his labours, in the form of material things, houses and money. But there are other rewards as well, more difficult to define but just as real and of infinitely greater value. There are the rewards that come through sharing with others in the tragedies and joys of life. They are the rewards that come when we journey into the human heart and soul, both when the heart is broken and when it is filled so that the cup of blessing runs over. Within the space of the last two weeks I have been both journeying in the flesh and in the spirit, and the rewards have been many.

Just how faithfully I will continue to report "through the train window" remains to be seen. But I have the solid satisfaction that has come with a kindly and generous farewell gift arising out of the fellowship of the church. I am grateful also to those who in my absence are carrying on the work of the church through the Sunday School and in the church worship services.

The following schedule of services will be observed in the United

COYOTE GETTERS: The Municipal District of Mountain View has made application to the Provincial Department of Agriculture and has now been authorized to release cyanide guns and poison pellets to be used to kill coyotes.

A school of instruction was held in the Hartmann Hall on Wednesday, August 25, and was attended by about 40 men who learned by actual practice and through instruction how to use these materials in the war against the wily coyote. Mr. W. Lobay, pest control officer for Alberta, was present at this meeting to address and to give actual demonstration and stress the precautions necessary to handle the poison material. He pointed out that it is not the intentions of his department to exterminate the coyote but only to control them since coyotes do some good in the control of mice, gophers, etc.

Mountain View became the 83rd district in Alberta to accept this coyote control policy. There is always the element of danger present when using poisons and it was felt that perhaps we should let others try it out first. We are assured that it is a tried and proven program accepted by practically the entire province so we are now into it too. Coyote getters and poison pellets, however, are only released to those people who have attended a school and received instruction on their use. They are then issued a certificate indicating that they are familiar with the safe use of poison material. This certificate then entitles them to receive and set out cyanide guns and poison pellets. These materials are only obtainable through the Municipal Office and from me in person. I have been appointed the Municipal Pest Control Officer and these poison materials are under my jurisdiction. Next week I will have more to say about this new poison program.

FARM ACCIDENTS

A survey in Indiana revealed that for every 17 people on farms there was one accident a year which caused injuries resulting in lost time or requiring medical care, or both. Tractors were the primary agency involved in one out of every eight farm work mishaps. These figures would suggest the need for greater care when working with farm machinery, particularly the farm tractor.

KROENING—LUFT

On the afternoon of July 28th, the Evangelical United Brethren Church in Didsbury was the scene of a lovely double-ring ceremony, when Mildred Irene, youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Adam J. Luft of Didsbury, became the bride of William Donald Kroening. The ceremony was performed by the groom's father, Rev. W.F. Kroening, before an altar decorated with baskets of peonies.

Advancing down the aisle on the arm of her father, the bride was radiant in a traditional gown of white lace and net over satin. The bodice was styled with a sweetheart jacket of lace with long lily-point sleeves and embroidered with pearls. It had a Peter Pan collar and was buttoned down the front with tiny self-covered buttons. The skirt was of the bouffant type of net over satin with lace inserts. On her head the bride wore a tiara of pearls, holding a finger-tip length embroidered veil. A pearl choker completed her ensemble. She carried a small white Bible topped with a cluster of deep red baby roses from which cascaded white satin ribbons adorned with rosebuds.

Attending the bride as matron of honor was her sister, Mrs. Dan Neufeld. Bride's maids were Miss Dorothy Harrison and Miss Helen Swalm. They were gowned alike in monochromatic shades of pink lace and net over tulle, with matching bandeaux. They carried bouquets of light pink, white and dark pink carnations respectively.

Freeding the bride down the aisle, were Miss Donna Dubois as flower girl and Gerald Janz as ring bearer. Donna looked adorable in a yellow, baby-pucker nylon dress, with lace trimming on the skirt and frosted nylon yoke. The tiny puffed sleeves were capped with frosted nylon. Her headress was of matching nylon in sweetheart style and she carried a nosegay of pink baby roses and carnations. Gerald was attired in a white jacket, with dark pants and bow tie. He carried the rings on a white satin cushion, trimmed with red ribbon and roses.

The groom was attended by Mr. George Fox of Three Hills. Ushers were the bride's brothers, Gordon and Glen Luft.

Mr. Hilord Janz sang the selection, "A Christian Wedding Song," before the ceremony and, "Wedding Prayer," as the bride and groom knelt at the altar. During the signing of the register the Janz Quartette of Three Hills sang, "O Perfect Love". Accompanist was Miss Ena Schwanke.

Following the ceremony, the re-

(From Our Own Correspondent)

Your correspondent is home again. After twenty-eight days in the hospital it seems one should still have someone to wait on every requirement, but that is not the case. It is nice to get home, but where could one get better care than in our local hospital? Instead of saying it elsewhere, let me say now that the entire staff of nurses and aids under the capable direction of Mrs. Turner deserve all the appreciation I can possibly give them. Their courtesy, cheerfulness and co-operation is beyond one's ability to describe and we say a hearty "thank you". To Dr. McKenzie we express unbounded appreciation for his good work and the spirit of confidence and courage he instills in one. A "thank you" also is extended to Dr. Paul, who put me to sleep so gently. Yes, it is nice to be home, but my recollection of the experience is only that which brings memories of deep appreciation and gratitude.

The apartments are coming along nicely. Painting will soon have to be done, and we still wonder if there are those who could help us with that work. Only six weeks before College begins again and so much to be done by so few.

Rev. D.M. finished his meetings in Madden United Church on Sunday evening. There was a splendid attendance in spite of the rainy weather for the former part of the meetings.

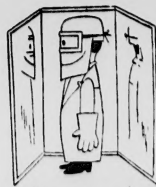

Have you seen the Treasurer's office at the College? When I walked into it what a lovely feeling it gave me to have everything so clean and cheerful. The walls are beautifully painted in cheerful colors and when desks and shelves are properly arranged it will be a fine place to work this winter. Come and see it some time.

Even though hail did do much damage to the gardens around the school, we find that the flowers are really doing well. Perhaps we'll appreciate them all the more this fall.

Arthur Eby and family are completing their summer vacation by spending a few days with relatives in Acadia Valley. Arthur has had a difficult time getting his days of vacation arranged this year.

ception was held in the church basement, where a delicious meal was served by the Rugby W.L. Leo Janz, as master of ceremonies, called upon the Janz Quartette, who sang, "Saviour, Like a Shepherd Lead Us" and also, "I'm On the Battlefield for My Lord". Mrs. Corry Eby sang, "Together With Jesus" and Rev. Dave Enanson gave a short talk. The groom's father called upon the groom to make a few remarks, which he very fittingly did. The bride also spoke a few words.

For travelling, the bride donned a light grey suit, with red accessories. The happy couple left for a honeymoon at Banff. Upon their return they will reside at Three Hills.

The Roundel, official R.C.A.F. publication, has calculated the odds of winning at craps and in its latest issue devotes a full page to a scientific report on the subject by one of the air force's top mathematicians. In its April issue, the Roundel said that a successful roll in a dice game is 244 out of 495.

In a letter to the editor one offered disputed this and said:

"If the editorial staff of The Roundel really can make successful dice rolls of dice 244 times out of 495, it might be wise for them to move their quarters to some place more worthy of the skill with the galloping dominoes."

IN LOVING MEMORY

Dwaine Arthur, who passed away August 29, 1949.

There is no time that we could set for parting.

We who must remain are never ready for such pain.

Ever our prayer would be, not yet, not yet, dear God, another day With us let our beloved one stay. We must believe when falls the blow.

That wisely God has willed it so. Sadly missed by Mom, Dad, Myron and Gordon Geber.
